Dr. Thomas Doe, Golder Associates
Characterizing Fractures for Subsurface Fluid Flow

This presentation reviews the advances in understanding fluid flow in fractures over the past thirty years for both groundwater and for petroleum industry. The key components have moved beyond research and into commercial applicability. Groundwater and petroleum approaches have moved in separate but parallel paths, but each offers valuable findings for the other.

Where: Marquez Hall – MZ 108

When: 12:00 noon – 1:30 p.m.

Pizza and beverages will be served.
